In the realm of math and science, I often stray,
A struggling engineering student, day by day.
The formulas and equations, they swirl and sway,
As I try to grasp them, night and day.

My mind is filled with stress and doubt,
As I struggle to keep up, without a rout.
The pressure's on, the deadlines near,
And my grades, they do not cheer.

But still, I push on, through the night,
With coffee and determination, I ignite.
I strive to learn, to grow and gain,
And prove my worth, without a stain.

For in the end, I'll rise above,
And show the world, my engineering love.
I'll prove my worth, and make it through,
